HMT BEDFORDSHIRE

AN ARCTIC TRAWLER, BUILT IN 1935 BY SMITHS DOCK CO. OF MIDDLEBROUGH, ENGLAND. IN 1939 SOLD TO
THE ADMIRALTY AND CONVERTED TO AN ARMED TRAWLER. IN 1942 IT WAS ONE OF THE 24 TRAWLERS
LOANED TO THE U.S. NAVY FOR COASTAL PATROL. ARMAMENT: ONE 4" GUN, ONE MACHINE GUN AND DEPTH CHARGES."

Dedication date: Sometime after 1942.

Materials & Techniques: Black granite

Post dedication use: Every year on the Thursday and Friday closest to May 11th, a memorial service is held by the U.S. National Park Service, the U.S. Coast Guard, and members of the British Royal Navy.

Subject notes: In 1942, the British trawler, the HMT Bedfordshire, came to the United States as part of the Allied effort during World War II. While patrolling the waters of the Outer Banks for German Naval activity, the boat was torpedoed by a U-Boat on May 11, 1942, and all thirty-seven crewmen aboard were lost. Only four bodies were recovered. They were laid to rest on Ocracoke in a tiny plot considered the smallest Commonwealth War Graves Commission grave site in the world. Coast Guard service members buried the four recovered bodies in a plot gifted by an Ocracoke family, with the subsequent addition of a fence around the plot.

Location: The memorial is located in the British Cemetery located on British Cemetery Road and on the right when traveling north. The Wahab-Howard family Cemetery adjoins the memorial cemetery area to the north.

Landscape: The memorial sits within the cemetery landscape. It is situated in a garden area, surrounded by crushed stone and plantings, and next to a wooden boardwalk path. Small granite crosses sit directly behind the memorial. The fenced area with the graves of the four recovered sailors sits several feet from the memorial. The cemetery sits off the road, sheltered by trees, and historic homes are located nearby.
