Subject notes: The Vietnam War was fought in the midst of the Cold War. United States involvement in the war was out of fear of the domino effect of Communist takeover of southeast Asia and South Vietnam, in particular. Guerilla warfare took place in Vietnam, and many innocent Vietnamese lives were lost, along with the lives of many American military men. On August 15, 1973 United States military involvement in Vietnam came to an end.

Location: The monument is located near the intersection of McReynolds and Barrett Streets in Carthage.

Landscape: The monument is located in a wooded area surrounded by pine trees.
