Description: The memorial is composed of a tall, tapered granite column, bronze plaques on the front and rear, and a bronze eagle perched atop the column. The eagle, the symbol of the United States of America, is depicted with its wings outstretched. The left and right sides of the column each bear a bronze bas-relief of an olive branch, a classical symbol of both peace and victory. The monument bears two inscribed plaques: the rear plaque is the original plaque, and the front plaque is a newer plaque, duplicating the names on the original plaque with the addition of fallen servicemen who were not included in the original. Additionally, the original plaque included the names of African American servicemen separately. In the new plaque, all servicemen are listed in alphabetical order.
