The Cameron family of Orange County was one of antebellum North Carolina's wealthiest families.

Paul C. Cameron was the son of Duncan Cameron. He was born in 1808 at Stagville plantation near Durham, North Carolina. Although he studied law, Paul was more interested in agricultural reform. In 1843 he inherited his uncle's share of the family's estate, and he inherited most of his father's property in 1855.

Paul used his enormous wealth to expand his family's fortunes, purchasing plantations in Mississippi and Alabama. The document on this page is an excerpt of records he kept about the costs of setting up a new plantation in Greene County, Alabama.

In the first (left) column is a description of each item. The second column is some type of measurement, but it is unclear from the document what Cameron was recording. The last column is the total cost.

On the eve of the Civil War, Paul Cameron and his siblings owned more than one thousand slaves and nearly thirty thousand acres of plantation land in Orange, Wake, Person, and Granville counties, as well as plantations in Alabama and Mississippi.
