

The Lowry War ^[1]

by Jenny McElroy

On March 3, 1865, Allen Lowry and his son William were tried in a hastily organized cham ^[2] court, declared guilty of theft, and executed in Robeson County. While William was almost certainly a member -- and perhaps even the leader--of a gang that committed robberies, it is unlikely that the elderly Allen was involved in any raids. What is certain is that the two men's deaths sparked North Carolina's famous Lowry War, a seven-year period of raids, robberies, and murders.

After the outbreak of the Civil War, many Lumbee Indians living in Robeson County were conscripted to work on the construction of Fort Fisher. To avoid forced labor and the Confederate Home Guard conscription officers charged with enforcing it, many Lumbee men camped in the woods and swamps near their homes and depended on friends and relatives for subsistence. For a community already facing desperate times, this practice, known as "laying out," was taxing.

By December 1864, the riches of their more affluent neighbors became too tempting for four of Allen Lowry's sons and they stole two hogs from wealthy slaveholder James P. Barnes. Several months of local troubles followed this theft. Barnes suspected the Lowrys, and when he attempted to have them captured, he was shot by a gang that included at least two Lowry brothers. In January 1865, the Lowrys killed J. Brantly Harriss, a local man who had murdered three of their cousins. They also raided the Robeson County Courthouse, stealing guns and ammunition which were then used in a series of February raids against the area's rich planters.

On March 3 the Home Guard searched farms and homes and questioned suspects, eventually finding stolen guns, clothes, and a gold cane-head at the home of Allen Lowry. They promptly arrested Lowry, his wife, five of their twelve children, and a young woman who was visiting them. The suspects were taken to a nearby plantation ^[3] and the Guard quickly convened their own version of a court of law. During the trial William Lowry attempted an escape with the aid of one of his brothers. He was shot and recaptured, but the escape attempt brought the court to a swift decision and the members voted to execute Allen Lowry and his sons Calvin, Sinclair, and William. Shortly thereafter, Calvin and Sinclair were given a reprieve because no stolen items had been found on their property or persons. That evening, William and Allen were taken back to the Lowry property, bound to a stake, blindfolded, and shot.

One journalist wrote that "[f]rom a thicket near at hand Henry Berry, the son of Allen Lowery, saw the volley fired which laid his brother and father bleeding on the ground. There he swore eternal vengeance against the perpetrators of the act." Thus, not only did the executions fail to stop the raids, but they served to further exacerbate ^[4] local tensions and made the Lowrys determined to get revenge upon the prominent persons that had wronged their family and community. After the Civil War ended, Henry made raids a constant part of local life, organizing a small band of men and coordinating their attacks on local plantations. For years these "swamp outlaws" stole from the wealthy, evaded ^[5] prosecution, and killed law enforcement officers that tried to arrest them. During what came to be called the "Lowry War," the band carefully directed their actions toward the community's more affluent citizens. This earned them popularity and Robin Hood-like reputations among the area's poorer citizens.

The Lowry Band committed its last major act of outlawry on 16 February 1872, raiding Lumberton and escaping with $1000 worth of goods and a safe filled with over $20,000. Shortly thereafter, Henry Berry Lowry disappeared completely and the $12,000 reward for his capture went unclaimed.

The stories surrounding Henry Berry Lowry's fate range from the plausible to the incredible. Among the claims are that he died of a gun-shot wound; drowned; faked his own death; or was smuggled out of the area in a tool box. At least one report claimed that he fled to South America; another said that he escaped to the northwest and led the Modoc Indians in their 1872-1873 war against the federal government in Oregon. Still others claimed that he never left the area. As late as 1937 Lowry's great-nephew, Dr. Earl C. Lowry, claimed that his uncle was still alive.

Although his ultimate fate is unknown, the legend of Henry Berry Lowry and his band of outlaws has never died. They became folk heroes, with one journalist in 1872 calling them "the Rob Roys and Robin Hoods" of Robeson County. Lowry's influence continues today: the Lumbee community's highest honor is named for him, several novels and plays have been written about his exploits, and since 1976 a musical drama entitled Strike at the Wind! has been performed in Robeson County every summer.

Source Citation:

McElroy, Jenny. "March 1865 — Executions Spark the Lowry War," This Month in North Carolina History, March 2008. https://blogs.lib.unc.edu/ncm/2008/03/01/this_month_march_1865/ ^[6].

User Tags:

American Indians ^[7]

Civil War ^[8]

history ^[9]

Lumbee ^[10]

North Carolina ^[11]

North Carolina History ^[12]

outdoor drama ^[13]

Page ^[14]

Robeson County ^[15]

Students ^[16]

Teachers ^[17]

All Rights Reserved ^[18]

From:

ANCHOR: A North Carolina History Online Resource ^[19]

Copyright Date:

2008

People:

Henry Berry Lowry ^[20]

The Lumbee Tribe ^[21]

Places:

Robeson County ^[22]

Watch and Listen:

NORTH CAROLINA PUBLIC

"The Legend of Henry Berry Lowry,"^[23] The State of Things, by Frank Stasio and Jeremy Loeb, featuring UNC professor of history Malinda Maynor Lowery and historical novelist Josephine Humphreys. Broadcast on June 21, 2011.

Through Native Eyes, The Henry Berry Lowrie Story(1999) produced, written and directed by Van Coleman.

Part I^[24]

Part II^[25]

Part III^[26]

Related Topics:

- Lowry Band^[27]
- Conscription^[28]
- The Home Guard^[29]
- Vance's Proclamation Against Deserters^[30]
- The Raleigh Standard Protests Conscription^[31]
- Civil War Desertion^[32]
- The Shelton Laurel Massacre^[33]
- Henry Berry Lowry: An Examination of the Outlaw's Influence of Post Civil War Media and Reconstruction Era Politics^[34]

Primary Sources:

PROCLAMATION OF OUTLAWRY,
In the name of the State of North Carolina,
TO THE SHERIFF OF ROBESON COUNTY—Greeting:

WHEREAS, INFORMATION HATH been laid before me Daniel L. Russell, Jr., Judge of the Superior Courts of Law of the State of North Carolina, on written affidavit, which is filed and retained by me, that one Henry Berry Lowry, one Andrew Strong, one Boss Strong, one Shoemaker John, one John Dial and one William Chavis, of Robeson county, have committed sundry and divers murders, burglaries, robberies and other felonies, and that said Henry Berry Lowry, Andrew Strong, Boss Strong, Shoemaker John, John Dial and William Chavis, do conceal themselves and evade arrest and service of the usual process of law.

Now, therefore I, the said Daniel L. Russell, Jr., Judge as aforesaid, by virtue of authority vested in me by an act of the General Assembly in such case made and provided, do issue this my proclamation, hereby requiring the said Henry Berry Lowry, Andrew Strong, Boss Strong, Shoemaker John, John Dial and William Chavis, and each and every one of them, forthwith to surrender themselves to the Sheriff of Robeson county, or to any other Sheriff or lawful officer of the State. And I do also empower and require the Sheriff of Robeson county or of any other county where the said felons are supposed to lurk and conceal themselves to search for and pursue with all the power of the county, and effectually apprehend said fugitives from justice.

And I do further declare, that, if the said fugitives or any of them continue henceforth to stay out, lurk or conceal themselves and do not immediately surrender themselves, any citizen of the State may capture, arrest, and bring them on to justice, and in case of flight or resistance, after being called on and warned to surrender, may slay them or any one of them without accusation or impeachment of any crime.

Given under my hand and issued this 5th day of March, 1869.

DANIEL L. RUSSELL, JR.,
 Judge Superior Court of Law.

I, B. A. Howell, Sheriff of Robeson county, do request all the citizens of said county to assist in arresting the felons named in the above proclamation, in order that they may be brought to justice.

B. A. HOWELL, Sheriff.
 March 11. 11—w4w

A PROCLAMATION.
By His EXCELLENCY GOVERNOR HOLDEN.
 EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT OF N. C.,
 RALEIGH, March 19th, 1869.

WHEREAS, Information has been received at this Department that HENRY BERRY LOWRY, ANDREW STRONG, BOSS STRONG, SHOEMAKER JOHN, JOHN DIAL and WILLIAM CHAVIS, of Robeson county have committed divers murders, robberies and other crimes against the peace and dignity of the State, and are now at large so that the usual process of law cannot be served against them.

Now therefore I, Wm. W. HOLDEN, Governor of the State of North Carolina, by virtue of authority vested in me by law do issue this proclamation offering a reward of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS, for the arrest and delivery of said criminals.

Done at our City of Raleigh, on the 19th day of March, 1869, and in the 93rd year [L. S.] of our Independence.

W. W. HOLDEN, Governor.
 ROBT. M. DOUGLAS, Private Secretary.
 mar 13 861—law1f
 Wilmington Post copy three times.

[35]

Proclamation of Outlawry for Henry Berry Lowry and his band of robbers.

Artifacts:

[36]

The Swamp Outlaws, or, The North Carolina Bandits: Being a complete history of the modern Rob Roys and Robin Hood published circa 1872.

3 January 2018

Source URL: <https://ncpedia.org/anchor/lowry-war>

Links

[1] <https://ncpedia.org/anchor/lowry-war> [2] <https://ncpedia.org/glossary/sham> [3] <https://ncpedia.org/glossary/plantation> [4] <https://ncpedia.org/glossary/exacerbate> [5] <https://ncpedia.org/glossary/evaded> [6] https://blogs.lib.unc.edu/ncm/2008/03/01/this_month_march_1865/ [7] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/american-indians> [8] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/civil-war> [9] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/history> [10] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/lumbee> [11] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/north-carolina-5> [12] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/north-carolina-6> [13] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/outdoor-drama> [14] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/page> [15] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/robeson-county> [16] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/students> [17] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/teachers> [18] <https://ncpedia.org/category/user-tags/all-rights> [19] <https://ncpedia.org/category/entry-source/anchor-north> [20] <https://www.ncpedia.org/biography/lowry-henry> [21] <https://www.ncpedia.org/lumbee/introduction> [22] <https://www.ncpedia.org/geography/robeson> [23] <https://www.wunc.org/show/the-state-of-things/2011-06-21/the-legend-of-henry-berry-lowry> [24] <https://vimeo.com/48917352> [25] <https://vimeo.com/48920288> [26] <https://vimeo.com/48922557> [27] <https://www.ncpedia.org/lowry-band> [28] <https://ncpedia.org/conscription> [29] <https://ncpedia.org/anchor/primary-source-home-guard> [30] <https://ncpedia.org/anchor/primary-source-vances> [31] <https://ncpedia.org/anchor/raleigh-standard-conscription> [32] <https://ncpedia.org/desertion-civil-war> [33] <https://ncpedia.org/anchor/shelton-laurel-massacre> [34] <https://cwnc.omeka.chass.ncsu.edu/exhibits/show/henry-berry-lowry/introduction> [35] <https://www.ncpedia.org/media/image/proclamations-outlawry> [36] <https://www.ncpedia.org/media/lowry-war>