Fruit vendor in Guadalajara's Blue Water Park

A vendor sells fruit and fruit juice from a covered stall in a park. A patron chooses among the many varieties. Guadalajara was founded soon after the conquest of Mexico in the sixteenth century and has grown to be one of Mexico's primary cities. It is the second largest city in Mexico, behind Mexico City, and is the industrial capital of the country. The city is famous for its manufacture of hardware and software for Mexico's technology industry. It is also a popular tourist destination for its blend of colonial sites and modern conveniences. Blue Water Park, or Parque Agua Azul, is in the center of the city of Guadalajara and provides a welcome respite from the noise and dirt of the city. The park is full of gardens, ponds, and statues, making it a popular tourist destination.
