

Counterfeiting ^[1]

Counterfeiting

by David A. Norris, 2006

Counterfeit North Carolina 20 shilling note, 1783-1785.

Image from the North Carolina Museum of History.

^[2]Counterfeiting plagued North Carolina throughout its early history, with criminals making and passing fraudulent coins even before the colony ^[3] issued its own money ^[4]. North Carolina distributed its first paper currency in 1712, and by 1714 forging paper money was a felony punishable by death. In colonial times counterfeiters often worked in large organizations that operated in more than one colony, and money from other colonies, especially Virginia and South Carolina, was frequently printed in North Carolina. The legislatures of several colonies soon cooperated and passed laws against forging the currency of other colonies.

The British encouraged the counterfeiting of Continental money during the Revolutionary War ^[5] to weaken the American war effort. A 1779 law passed by the General Assembly ^[6] criminalized the reproduction of currency or lottery tickets issued by the Continental Congress or any other state. It also imposed up to a year's imprisonment and branding of the letter C on the left cheek of the offender, in addition to the required flogging ^[7] and pillory time for a first offense.

During the Civil War ^[8], Confederate money circulated in North Carolina to replace U.S. coinage. Counterfeiters were particularly active during this time, especially in the early years of the war before inflation destroyed the value of Confederate currency. North Carolina's newspapers ^[9] often warned the public about new counterfeit notes and advised readers how to detect them. Some forgeries were skillfully made, but others were evidently quite amateurish. In 1863 a batch of bogus three-dollar notes quickly aroused suspicion, as the state was not issuing three-dollar bills at that time.

Many counterfeiters altered genuine notes by pasting numbers clipped from worthless older notes onto new bills to raise their value. In 1862 forgers in Raleigh used this method to transform a number of 2-dollar state bills into 10-dollar notes. Other bills were altered with a pencil, such as a batch of 5-cent notes that were changed to 50-cent notes and circulated in Wilmington.

The National Bank Act of 1863 made the federal government the sole source of U.S. currency and prohibited states, banks, and businesses from issuing their own money. Although laws against counterfeiting remained on the books in North Carolina, detecting and punishing such forgers became a federal matter.

References:

Kenneth Scott, "Counterfeiting in Colonial North Carolina," NCHR 34 (October 1955).

Alan D. Watson, Money and Monetary Problems in Early North Carolina (1980).

Additional Resources:

Fulghum, R. Neil. "Money Troubles on North Carolina's Homefront: Counterfeit & Spurious Notes." Documenting the American South, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

<https://docsouth.unc.edu/ims/currency/currenc.html#counterfeit> ^[10] (accessed October 8, 2012).

Scott, Kenneth. "Counterfeiting in Colonial North Carolina." North Carolina Historical Review 34. 1957. p. 467-482. <http://www.ncpublications.com/colonial/Nchr/Subjects/Scott.htm> ^[11] (accessed October 10, 2012).

Norris, David. "A Counterfeiting Scam in Civil War Wilmington." The Cape Fear Civil War Round Table.

<http://www.cfcwrt.com/A%20Counterfeiting%20Scam%20in%20Civil%20War%20Wilmington.pdf> [12] (accessed October 8, 2012).

"Counterfeit Bills Pop Up Across Charlotte." WSOCTV.com. December 14, 2010.

<http://www.wsocvt.com/news/news/counterfeit-bills-pop-up-across-charlotte/nGs5w/> [13] (accessed October 8, 2012).

Ohnesorge, Steve. "More counterfeit money turns up in Catawba Co." WBTV.com. January 23, 2012.

<http://www.wbtv.com/story/16582682/more-counterfeit-money-turns-up-in-catawba-co> [14] (accessed October 8, 2012).

Image Credits:

"Counterfeit Currency, Accession #: H.2007.81.1 [2]." 1783-1785. North Carolina Museum of History.

Subjects:

Banks and banking [15]

Economics and Economic Development [16]

Governmental programs [17]

Law and legal history [18]

Authors:

Norris, David A. [19]

From:

Encyclopedia of North Carolina, University of North Carolina Press. [20]

1 January 2006 | Norris, David A.

Source URL: <https://ncpedia.org/counterfeiting>

Links

[1] <https://ncpedia.org/counterfeiting> [2] <http://collections.ncdcr.gov/RediscoveryProficioPublicSearch/ShowItem.aspx?137639+> [3] <https://ncpedia.org/colonial-period-overview> [4] <https://ncpedia.org/currency> [5] <https://ncpedia.org/american-revolution> [6] <https://ncpedia.org/general-assembly> [7] <https://ncpedia.org/flogging> [8] <https://ncpedia.org/history/cw-1900/civil-war> [9] <https://ncpedia.org/newspapers> [10] <https://docsouth.unc.edu/imls/currency/curren.html#counterfeit> [11] <http://www.ncpublications.com/colonial/Nchr/Subjects/Scott.htm> [12] <http://www.cfcwrt.com/A%20Counterfeiting%20Scam%20in%20Civil%20War%20Wilmington.pdf> [13] <http://www.wsocvt.com/news/news/counterfeit-bills-pop-up-across-charlotte/nGs5w/> [14] <http://www.wbtv.com/story/16582682/more-counterfeit-money-turns-up-in-catawba-co> [15] <https://ncpedia.org/category/subjects/banks-and-banking> [16] <https://ncpedia.org/category/subjects/ec> [17] <https://ncpedia.org/category/subjects/governmental-prog> [18] <https://ncpedia.org/category/subjects/laws> [19] <https://ncpedia.org/category/authors/norris-david> [20] <https://ncpedia.org/category/entry-source/encyclopedia->