

dialogue journal ^[1]

Type of Speech:

noun ^[2]

Definition:

written conversations between students and teachers for exchange of experiences, ideas, or reflections. Dialogue journals are communication tools for sustained writing opportunities rather than an occasion for assessment or grading.

Additional Information:

Students choose the topics for written conversation. Teachers respond with ideas, opinions, information, and/or questions. Entries may be daily, weekly or monthly and take place over the course of a unit, semester, or school year.
