

Exhibitors Making Entries at the Office of the Secretary

Exhibitors Making Entries at the Office of the Secretary

An illustration of people entering their goods -- pies, wines, and more -- to be judged at the first North Carolina Colored Industrial Association Fair. This fair was held on November 17-20 1879.

These sketches, created by Joseph Becker, appeared in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

EXHIBITORS MAKING ENTRIES AT THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY.

Citation (Chicago Style):

Becker, Joseph. "North Carolina—First Grand Fair of the North Carolina (Colored) Industrial Association, Held at Raleigh, November 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th." Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. December 6, 1879.

Read the related article: The African American State Fair
Usage Statement:

Public Domain

Public Domain is a copyright term that is often used when talking about copyright for creative works. Under U.S. copyright law, individual items that are in the public domain are items that are no longer protected by copyright law. This means that you do not need to request permission to re-use, re-publish or even change a copy of the item. Items enter the public domain under U.S. copyright law for a number of reasons: the original copyright may have expired; the item was created by the U.S. Federal Government or other governmental entity that views the things it creates as in the public domain; the work was never protected by copyright for some other reason related to how it was produced (for example, it was a speech that wasn't written down or recorded); or the work doesn't have enough originality to make it eligible for copyright protection.

